Career Objective

proficiency in React.js allows me to build dynamic and responsive user interfaces that significantly enhance user experience. I am committed to continuous learning and am keen on collaborating with a dynamic team to deliver high-quality solutions that drive business success. As a MERN Stack Web Developer specializing in React.js, I excel in front-end development and architecture design. My expertise includes building dynamic user interfaces, conducting code reviews, and performing root cause analysis. I collaborate closely with software engineers and internal customers to deliver high-quality product development and design specifications. Proficient in Scrum and other software development methodologies.
